ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Address Delivered by M. J. Durham, of Danville, Ky., at the Dedication of Central Hall, Louisville, October 27, 1868.

BROTHERS OF THE ORDER: We have not assembled here to-day to celebrate the birth of some military despot, whose crimsoned laurels, gathered from the blood-dyed fields of ambition strife, have won the transient praises of admiring millions, nor with open-mouthed cannon, bonfires and illuminations, to rejoice over political success, nor to swell the triumph of some proud conqueror, but far more sacred is our cause.
We have met in this hall to commemorate the establishment of an institution whose principles are founded on the best and purest moral philosophy; an institution dedicated to universal philanthropy; an institution in which an assembled world may unite in the practice of its sublime virtues.

Occasions like the present, grand, august and solemn, where banded brotherhoods, those internal revolving circles, within the vast circumference of society, formed for the amelioration of woe and the better welfare of the world, celebrated with visible splendor and magnificence; the more splendid invisible which they represent cannot fail to interest the membership and impress the mass of public mind.— Wherever in solemn grandeur appear those sacred combinations, whose charity has flown unostentatiously through severe channels to the chambers of affliction and the heath-place of sorrow, the heart of the unprejudiced must beat high with vigorous, holy and God-like emotions. The principal of our Order are alike applicable to all of every condition, and those of every clime may bow with reverence at its sacred shrine. It matters not what form of government he is subject, whether under the most despotic or the most free, around this sacred altar he always meets with a friend, protector and brother. Nor does it matter whether he has performed a pilgrimage to the holy land with the devoted few, or subscribes to the Christian faith, at this sacred altar he will be met with outstretched arms, and every thrill of his heart will be met with a responsive sympathy from each and from all.

Though this lodge is guarded from the intrusion of the curvets and the file, as well as the malicious assaults of those who are ignorant of our principles, yet the instant the guardian is the agis of his protection, and the swift revolving door exhibits to his ravished eyes friends and brothers ready to receive and swift to administer to his every want. Gratitude, the shiniest virtue in the moral code, there inspires the mind with an elevation of feeling, while the object of philanthropy invokes blessings from the great "I Am" upon the friends of suffering human nature!

Various have been the objections urged against Odd Fellowship, all of which I shall not attempt to answer. But we are often asked why we weary around us such a web of secrecy, mystery and obscurity.
Secrecy is not peculiar to our order alone.
The Bible, the Christian's guide, is full of mysteries, and to the angels of that upper and better land are not revealed the secrets of Heaven, the Christian's home.— Those bright orbs of light that revolve about us are far above our comprehension.
The air we breathe, the food we eat, and the fluids we drink are all mysterious in their composition. The presence of God, the fountain of all created good and the source whence every blessing flows, wrapt in folds of its own great mystery, cannot be comprehended by man. Our secrecy is of the same nature as the confidence of the social circle, the privacy of public institutions, the silence of governmental councils, which enters into the very life and happiness of society, and when these barriers of protection, broken, the secret of conjugal affection, of domestic peace, of solid government, of harmony and order, are at once uprooted and destroyed. Our signs, symbols, tokens and passwords are intended for mutual recognition, and to guard against fraud and imposition, and, therefore, are secret, but the principles of Odd Fellowship are never concealed; they are boldly proclaimed from the housetops, and speak from the good works which everywhere surround us. Give me a voice that shall reach the remotest bounds of earth, and cause every living creature to hear—give me a stand on yonder sun, and a voice that shall sound to the far distant orb of Saturn, and summon up the listening millions of God's vast universe, and without hesitation, I would freely disclose and promote the principles of Odd Fellowship.
They are written in bold and capital letters in the conduct of every faithful devotee, and shine out in the practice of their sublime virtues. We are frequently told that our ranks are filled from those who are in the humbler walks of life. This may be true, still we can boast of divines who reflect honor upon the sacred arch; of orators whose impassioned eloquence has enraptured admiring thousands; of statesmen whose fame has woven an undying chaplet around their country's glory, and of spirits as pure as ever beat responsive to the holy impulses of patriotism. I could mention many in our Order whose fame is identified with the great interest of humanity. I could transport you across the pathless ocean and point you to a Bulwer, who has shed such lustre on letters, and over whose wizzard page the eye of beauty kindles in rapture. I might direct you to that British Lord, who stood in law, in literature, in science, and philosophy as some aged castle of his country, a living monument of its ancient power, strength and solidity. I could point you to a thousand Old Fellows who shine like stars in the intellectual firmament, and glitter brightest in the constellation of virtue, genius, talent and chivalry, are peculiar to no class of society; but some of the brightest spirits of every age have been blessed with no heritage of wealth, or surrounded by none of the splendors of royalty.

Let your minds run back eighteen centuries, and no shouts of triumph were heard, no soul-inspiring music, no display of wealth and power, but, as if Heaven intended to teach mankind a lesson of humility, the immortal Son of God was born in a manger. The orators, poets and heroes of antiquity boasted of no proud ancestry; each was the architect of his own fame, and trusted to the achievement of his mighty genius for undying and increasing glory. The brightest spirits of the revolution were born in the humbler walks of life, but their native intellect and indomitable energy placed them upon that eminence to which the aspiring youth now looks with longing eyes.

The lessons that are taught in Odd Fellow lodges are calculated to soften the asperities of one nature, elevate the best feelings of the human heart, and draw us into communion with our great Original.
They breathe the spirit of Christianity, union and patriotism to our beloved republic.
When the tocsin of battle sounds the alarm from our hills, and reverberates through our valleys, Odd Fellows have been, and would still be, the first to flock around our country's standard to preserve her liberties or perish in the conflict. If the star-spangled banner, now waving over our capitol at Washington as an ensign of independence and honor, should, by any invading enemy, be torn from its flagstaff, Odd Fellows, from the innermost parts of the Union, with sounding horn and glittering steel, would rally to its rescue, and, amid the shout of admiring thousands, would bear it aloft and replace it in its own proud niche. Should the torch of the midnight incendiary wrap your houses in flames, he will be there to throw himself in the post of danger to preserve your families and property from destruction; and should pestilence again hover over the land, with dismay and death following in its footsteps, the Odd Fellow will be seen visiting the abode of sorrow, braving the fury of the epidemic, alleviating the sufferings of its ill-fated victims. Within our lodges the sectarian and politician dare not breathe his sentiments. It would be impious to mar these sacred precincts with heart-burnings and jealousies. We erect one common platform of perfect and liberal equality upon which all men may stand, and boast no greater homage than those around him, save that elevation which virtue and genius always claim for their votaries.— In the scale of social existence all men are of equal importance, yet there is an aristocracy that we proudly acknowledge—it is that of virtue over vice and intelligence over ignorance. The influence of mind is unseen, but is as irresistible as the majestic Mississippi that swallows up all its tributaries until it is lost in the broad bosom of the ocean. There is another influence to which we bow with humility and praise.
It is the gentle and softening influence of woman asserts over our rougher natures.
She is the legitimate monarch of the heart.
Her despotism is everywhere felt and universally acknowledged. She blends submission with command, humility with power, is the mistress of our earliest pleasures and the object of our latest adoration. As the sun sheds its genial rays upon the desolate earth, warms it into life and vegetation, as woman throws the sacred influence of her virtuous example over the social circle to check man in his wicked and wayward course. Well has the poet remarked "Without a smile from partial beauty won, Oft what were man? A world without a sun."

Fellow-citizens: Odd Fellowship, as the shining representative of high-toned moral virtue, forms an enduring golden link in the chain of mystic Providence with which God has encircled all created nature, and, although as an organic structure of human wisdom and sanctified of Heaven, we do not claim for it the distinguished honors of high antiquity, yet the noble principles of the Order were born to man when God said, "Let there be light, and there was light." They will never die. Immortal as the sun, and as the stars that stream in the firmament, they will live forever. But affliction, and keep ourselves unsotted from the world. This is Christianity.—

Remember that Odd Fellowship can only carry you through the ills of life; religion alone is the password to the great eutechamber of Heaven, and holiness of heart the explanation to the Grand Lodge in the skies. When the voice of the angel shall be heard upon this waters, when the last note of time shall heavily sound from the tomb of immovable ages, and the requie-tion of the world swells up and reverberates through boundless space, with all created good shall burst forth, as a child of the skies, be separated from the twins of sin, and gathered home to the presence of God.

When sculptured monuments shall be no more, when honor's gaudy

The Church Election.

A brief telegram informs us that the National Christian Association, recently in session in New York, its resolutions were offered congratulating General Grant on his election. This announcement falls harshly upon our ears; it is a matter of wonder what part of the business of any Christian Association relates to the issuing of congratulatory addresses to Presidents-elect. What has the Church to do with state? What connection has its interests with the politics of the nation? What relation has the kingdom of Christ to the kingdom of Grant?

And yet it can be imagined that men have ceased to render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and to God the things which are God's. The walls between the two kingdoms are broken down, and the masked boundaries are being leveled. The demon of power has crept into the Church. Preachers translate the Bible and make learned commentaries on the Constitution. They preach the doctrine of hatred and not the mild principles of the gospel. Associations and synods and assemblies meet in high places and sit down on the poly of robes, and dictate to the courses of nations, and parrot their own vanity by fusing praise and glory. They quarrel over the loyalty and infidelity of their members. The interest of religion are forgotten in hot and wrangling politics. Zionists have crept into the Church, and clerical lapdogs pay tribute to the powers that be, and lay down programmes for Senates and Presidents. The garments of the Church are trailed in the mire of politics, and her usefulness broken up by the material nation. The prince of the power of the air, not the Prince of peace, rules in the heart of man.

In many parts of the South, especially in the West, the love of country gave the devil in, and early the bitterness of politics infected their organizations. The Northern pulpit has in particular been ferocious towards the South since the close of the war. "The floodgates of Zion" have a kink seen for the Lord's work, education than the lowest Redskins. To gloat on them, to snathemize the Southern people and their institutions, and anticipate vengeance against them, is the Southern pulpit in operation.

All eyes, the only in the Southern States is a costly nuisance, serving no useful purpose, and should be gotten rid of.

The expenses of war is making the instrument thereof, it is by means of the army, and the money should be taken from the existing bodies to which they have been subjected in connection with General Howard's negro line at the South, and sent to take front, where an imposing demonstration will easily attract Leeks into quiescence until some new and more effective legislation in Southern States. They then turn to parrot and beset in operation.

At all events, the only in the Southern States is a costly nuisance, serving no useful purpose, and should be gotten rid of. The expenses of war is making the instrument thereof, it is by means of the army, and the money should be taken from the existing bodies to which they have been subjected in connection with General Howard's negro line at the South, and sent to take front, where an imposing demonstration will easily attract Leeks into quiescence until some new and more effective legislation in Southern States. They then turn to parrot and beset in operation.

The New York World, in estimating the expenses of the late election in that State, says that Griswold was assessed $50,000 when nominated for Governor, $30,000 more for Pennsylvania, and $10,000 more for New York, making in all "hundreds of thousands of dollars." The Union League Club contributed $200,000, and Senator Moore's $100,000. The total sum raised by the Republicans in New York is put at $1,500,000.

Secretary McClellan estimates that the Federal Government will be in on $250,000,000, which he proposes as the standard for next year. Lost at the expenditure, including the interest on the public debt, were about $700,000 in legal expenses. The interest on the public debt is $18,000,000.00 in legal expenses. Add to this $180,000.00 the sum of $20,000,000, and the aggregate is $430,000,000 which will, in fact, be wanted by the Secretary for the coming year.

We have not a doubt that the full National expenditures will be $500,000,000 for 1863, which is a greater sum than is required by either of the great monarchies of France and Great Britain, which equal us in point of wealth, and have double our amount of property.

WHEN THE PRESIDENTIAL ELECTORS MEET.—The electors chosen in each State meet at the capital of the respective State on the first Wednesday in December. They vote by direct ballot for President and Vice President, and send the result, carefully sealed, by special messenger, who will deliver it to the President of the Senate. The Senate and House, having a fixed day for a joint convention, will assemble together in the House. Wade, President of the Senate, will open the certificates, count the votes and announce that Ulysses S. Grant is elected President and Schuyler Colfax Vice-President of the United States.

VITY LARKE.—The New York Sun faithfully say:

"We dare say the applicants for office would thank their correspondence with Gen. Grant more interesting if it were on all one side."

In the good old time fifty years ago there were but 5,000 slave-holders in this country.

Reduced the Arrests.

More than a hundred (70) a week, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, are extorted from the law officers of the country for the support of a great army, which apparently about as many enter worthless causes as claim number of men called under arms as available for manning. Some months since, the western border regiments were paraded by Indians, and no soldiers were found available for their protection, or for the punishment of the savage raiders. Detached parties of troops indeed, had encounters with the Indians, and generally, like the unarmed settlers, were massacred; but throughout the summer, while the whole frontier was subjected to the atrocities of Indian warfare, we might as well, for all practical purposes have had no army at all. There few lay past there has been in the papers a grand and abundant exhortation against the Indians, by a score of General Sedgwick, and, as far as I can get out for Indiana, when a tivity was gradually abandoned every consideration of humanity, and justice to the brave men who are pushing the lines of civilization Westward across the great plains, we are presented with a picture of Indian warfare, we might as well, for all practical purposes have had no army at all. # THE SENTINEL.

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1858.

LOCAL AND DISTANT NEWS.

Desirable Family Residence for Sale.

I offer for sale privately my large and conveniently arranged family residence on High Street, in Mount Sterling.

Also, 65 or 67 acres of land adjoining the Montgomery distillery. The price terms, &c., apply to the undersigned.

Mrs. LAUGHING.

ED Who will avail himself of the opportunity offered by Frank, Gump & Co? Everybody that has any money.

The present lively weather affords an excellent time for cleaning up our streets. We suggest that our city authorities have the matter attended to at once.

ED Messrs. Bridges & Fesler, of this county, sold to Messrs. Dunn, of Garrard county, last week, the blind saddle stallion known as "Montgomery Demure," for $900.

ED Hofman & Co., of this town, have purchased a one half interest in the Distillery recently purchased by Charles Nelson, of Cincinnati, from Stockwell & Co., of Fleming county. We understand they will commence operations in a few days.

ED Who will pay all they owe? Frank, Gump & Co.

ED Military Goods selling at cost at Miss Davis's.

PROMISE.—Mr. Alt. Bascom, of Bath, has a cow which, a few days ago, gave birth to four calves—three of which are still living.

KILLED.—We are informed that an Irishman was killed near Sharpsburg a few days ago by a cart upsetting and falling upon him.

ED The Odd Fellows' Hall is now readying the finishing touches and will be ready for occupancy by the 15th of the present month, when it will be the handsomest hall in the State. The lower rooms of the building, we understand, will be finished in a short time. Great praise is due our fellow citizens, Maj. Tenny, for the energy and judgment he has displayed in erecting this building.

ED Bob Smith will offer for sale to the highest bidder, on Saturday, December the 12th, his three business houses on main street, in this town. The buildings are conveniently arranged, and are well adapted to any kind of business.

ED The editor of this paper left on Tuesday morning to be absent sometime weeks. By reference to the list of marriages in this issue, it will be seen what has taken him away. During his absence these columns will be under the control of Richard Reid, Esq.

ED M. C. O'Connell has on hand a choice article of chewing tobacco. Give it a trial.

ED Samuels & Jordan still have on hand a handsome stock of furs, which they are selling at Cincinnati prices.

ED The stock of dress goods at Johnson & Thompson's cannot be surpassed for fineness nor cheapness.

PAY UP—All persons owing Miss Annie Davis will please come and settle, as now is the time she needs the money.

ED Our young friends L. T. Childs and Henry Jones, are now busily engaged in opening their large stock of family groceries, in the house lately occupied by L. D. Wilson & Son, on Main street. As they are both prompt, energetic and reliable business men, we have no doubt they will enjoy a good patronage. The public can deal with no other gentleman. See their advertisement in another column.

ED It seems that our friend the telegrapher a few weeks ago in regard to the public meetings has not been headed. We saw a gentleman on the streets with a bucket a few nights ago, trying to borrow or buy a bucket of water. We hope for the convenience of our citizens that our city fathers will direct their attention to the matter at once.

A DAZZLING SPOT.—The richest and most variegated stock of durable and pliable ware that ever bewielded the gaze of those who admire the beautiful in this line, may now be seen at the establishment of Mr. P. L. Rose, in this town.

Mr. Rose is the largest and silverage dealer in North East Kentucky, and is one of our most enterprising business men, and we are pleased to notice that he is in such a splendid stock for the holidays.

ED Our friends, Samuels & Jordan, determined to keep the winter time, have now imported in connection with their dry goods establishment, a new line tailoring department, under the superintendence of Mr. A. S. Witten, who we are informed is a master tailor, well known. Under the present circumstances, I am prepared to make up in the best manner all kinds of garments for gentlemen, and cloaks & ladies. They have on hand a splendid stock of cloths, & fabrics, vestings and clothing goods &c., &c., the latest patterns, which they are prepared to make up in good style.

Odd Fellows' Celebration.

The cestaneous Committee's invitation of Watson Lodge, No. 32, I. O. O. F., has extended to us a kind invitation to join with them in the celebration of the 22nd anniversary of their Lodge in this town, on the 13th inst., at which time their elegant Hall will be dedicated to the purposes of the Order, with appropriate services. They have secured the services of these eminent Old Fellows Rev. J. W. Venables, of Versailles, Ky., and Hon. M. P. Gaddis, of Cincinnati, O., to deliver the dedicatory address, whose oration as orators will assist the presence of a large assemblage. The ladies of Montgomery county have tendered to the Order a dinner, to be given at the Hall, and from the known reputation of Montgomery ladies not only for suspending hospitality, but as skillful caterers, their dinner will not be the least popular feature of the occasion. Sixton's celebrated Comet Band of Lexington, Ky., will furnish the music, and the presence of distinguished brethren from other parts of the States as well as high officials of the Order, will render the day a marked one in the annals of Montgomery Odd Fellows' Hall. When come up, will be one of the largest and most gaudy in the State. It will be fitted up with costly and superb furniture, and the walls decorated in the highest style of the painter's art by competent artists.

We will defer a more particular description of the Hall for a future occasion, when we hope to be able to record the complete success of the plans of our enterprising brethren.

IMPROVISATION.—Workmen are now engaged in putting up the walls of the Methodist Chapel in our town, and within a few days more of fair weather will have the completed. The church when finished will be a great improvement upon the old building.

ED Who will pay all they owe? Frank, Gump & Co.

ED Who is changing their name?

Toshbillingsm.

I never bet on the man who is always telling what he would have done if he had been their; I have noticed that this kind never get their.

The fear of the law here, and the law hereafter, has furnished us some very clever specimens of Christianity.

Fools don't know their strength; if they did, they would keep still.

True happiness seems to consist in wanting all we can enjoy, and then getting all we want.

Death never dies; it is like truth; they both have an immortality somewhere.

If you would make yourself agreeable, wherever yo go listen to the grievances of others, but never relate yo own.

Men never seem to get tired of talking of themselves, but I have heard them when I thought they showed signs of weakness.

Common sense is most generally despised by those who haven't got it.

Although mankind worship wealth, I will give them credit for one thing—they seldom mistake it for brains.

Monuments are poor investments—the bad don't deserve them, and the good don't need them.

The best way to keep a secret is to forget it.

It isn't so much trouble to get rich as it is to tell when we have got rich.

If a man wants to get at his actual dimensions let him visit a graveyard.

It is a good plan to know many people, but to let only few know you.

I don't care how much a man talks if he only say it in a few words.

Anybody can tell where lightning struck last, but it takes a smart man to find out where it is going to strike next time—this is one of the differences between learning and wisdom.

I have got a first rate recollection, but no memory. I can recollect distinctly of losing a ten dollar bill, but can't remember where, to save my life.

Marry Her First.

Many years ago, in what is now a flourishing city, lived a stalwart blacksmith, fond of his blooming daughter, whose many graces had ensnared the affection of a young printer. The couple, after a season of billing and cooing "engaged themselves," and nothing but the consent of the young lady's parents prevented their union. To obtain this an interview was arranged, and the type prepared a little speech to dislodge and convince the old man who sat enjoying his pipe in perfect content. The type dilated on the fact of their long friendship, their mutual attachment, their hopes for the future, and like topics; and taking the daughter by the hand, he said: "I'm now, sir, to ask your permission to transplant this lovely flower from its parent's bed!"—but his feelings overcame him, and he forgot the remainder of his oratorical flourish, stammered, and finally wound up with, "f---"; its parental bed into my own." The father keenly relished his discomfiture of the suitor, and removing the pipe and blowing a cloud, replied: "Well, young man, I don't know as I have any objection, provided you marry the girl first."

Passing Away.

We are passing away—going rapidly and surely down to the cold and silent tomb. To-day, as the chilling winds of Autumn blow over us, they are teaching a lesson of the instability of earthly things. The green waving foliage of the forest has been touched by the death-dealing frost of Winter; and old Time in passing, has brushed with his rustling wings "the red and yellow leaf" from its parent stem. The forest songster is ceasing to thrill his merry joyous note and taking his departure for a more genial clime. The beautiful flowers have perished, and no longer inhales its fragrance upon the air. The tooth of Time is gnawing at man's proudest monuments, and oft by one they are falling and crumbling back again to dust. But not only upon surrounding objects is this silent change performing the sure word of decay. Man himself is falling. Not like the feline, and the flower, and the green things of earth, in their season; but ever and anon, when hope is brightest, and the prospect for a long and happy life is most flattering. Poor frail man, how weak and helpless! His eye may flash with the figure of genius. He may stand erect before the world, in all the pride of manly beauty; but death comes in and cuts him down, oftentimes in the midst of success. Alas! how important the injunction, "Be ye also ready."

KENTUCKY CONGRESSMAN.—We give the names of the members of the Forty-first Congress from Kentucky—an unbroken Democratic delegation:

First Dist.—Lawrence S. Trimble.*

Second Dist.—W. N. Sweeney.

Third Dist.—Jacob S. Colladay.*

Fourth Dist.—J. Proctor Knott.*

Fifth Dist.—Boyd Winchester.

Sixth Dist.—Thomas L. Jones.*

Seventh Dist.—James B. Beck.*

Eighth Dist.—Geo. M. Adams.*

Ninth Dist.—John M. Rice.

Those indicated by an asterisk, (*) served in the last Congress. This is the first time Kentucky has ever had a delegation of one party. It now presents a bold, defiant and unbroken front against Radicalism!
